LOL-lab LIVE is a comedy night with a twist. Our comedians are all local White City residents or Imperial College London scientists who met during an intensive comedy school workshop.

Imperial researchers are used to facing challenges like climate change and cancer but can they, alongside White City locals, stand up to a live audience? Will they break down stereotypes that scientists are really boring geeks? Is science actually fascinating and relevant to our everyday lives? Find out at our very special charity comedy night!
